MISCELLANY.

A spring wagon containing eight children and the driver was struck at Denver on the 1st instant by a Denver & Rio Grande train, killing four and fatally wounding the others.

Reports of the assessors to the auditor of the State show the total loss to Iowa by the epidemic of hog cholera last year to have been 2,330,000 hogs that died from the disease. The highest previous estimate was $15,000.

A tree very similar to the rubber and often mistaken for it is the cow-tree of Nicaragua. This yields a liquid which is very much like milk in taste and appearance and more than once has been drunk in coffee by engineers.

In the diamond jubilee parade, Queen Victoria, it is announced by the foreign dispatches, will ride in a carriage drawn by six white steeds, bedecked with $5500 worth of harness. She will be seated in a rock to and fro, giving her the appearance of constantly bowing to the populace.

In a few days work begins on a $40,000 public library to be given the city of Anaconda, Mont., by Mrs. Hearst, widow of the noted mining man. It will be on ground given for the purpose by Marcus Daly. It will have shelf capacity for some 20,000 books, and all the accessories.

The largest work on one subject is the "Acta Sanctorum," or "Deeds of the Saints." It was begun by the Bollandists, a community of the Society of Jesus. The first volume was completed in 1643 and sixty-one volumes altogether have been issued. Other volumes are still in preparation. —Boston Globe.

Neither mendicants or millionaires are the happiest of mankind. The man who has a good business and who can make a reasonable living and lay aside something for the future, who can educate his children and can leave enough to keep the wolf of want from the door of those he loves, ought to be the happiest of men.

It is believed that the tomb of General Grant is practically indestructible by the elements, unless it is the iron roof, which will have to be replaced from time to time. The rest is built from the hardest rock, the walls being from ten to twenty-five feet thick. The square portion is ninety feet each way by seventy feet high.

A telegram from Barbourville, Kentucky, says Rev. Harry Lawson, a Methodist divine, was shot and instantly killed by his 15-year-old son Isham. The father whipped the boy on Sunday for some slight offense and he left home. The punishment rankled in the little fellow's heart and he returned home and finding his father in a cornfield, slipped up behind him and blew his head from his shoulders with a shotgun. The murderer escaped.

There is a cave near Ft. Stanton on the Rio Bonito that, from reports, rivals anything of its kind in New Mexico. From parties who have visited it we are informed that the cave has been explored for a distance of about five miles without finding its rear terminus. As a distance of two miles from the entrance there is a lake of water where the rotten remains of an old canoe are to be found. Rose Anderson, one of the stage drivers from Tularosa to Ft. Stanton, informs us that he has explored this cave for a distance of two and one-half miles, that at places it is one hundred feet or more in height and from twenty to one hundred feet wide. He is of the opinion that it was once the source of an underground river. —Tularosa Chief.

END OF AN INDIANA MYSTERY.

Mrs. Clem, Five Times Tried for Murder, Dies at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., June 11.—Nancy E. Clem, the central figure in the most dramatic crime ever committed in this State, is dead. The last words of the woman to her physician were:

"For many years I have borne the odium of a murderer, but I am not guilty. I could put my hand on the murderer, but I shall not do it at this late day."

The story of the crime and the facts brought out in the several trials in court are as follows: September 12, 1868, Jacob L. Young and his wife, reckoned among the wealthiest persons in the West, went out, as was their custom, in a carriage for a drive. On Sunday morning their bodies were found on a raublar in White river at Cold Springs. Young had been shot in the head with a shotgun, and Mrs. Young lay near by, killed by a pistol wound in the back of her head. The day before his murder Young had been in a bank and had shown the banker a large amount of money in bills.

Mrs. Clem was recognized by two or three persons as being in Young's buggy with him and his wife on the way to Cold Springs on the afternoon of the murder. Her brother was recognized as following a short distance behind them in a buggy. The woman's track on the sandbar at Cold Springs was that of a new gaiter, which Mrs. Clem had bought a few days before and which disappeared the day after, and was afterwards found where it had been hidden. When arrested Mrs. Clem was wearing the shoes of her servant girl.

At the second trial of Mrs. Clem it was proved that she returned to the city in the buggy with her brother. It was claimed that Young was killed for the money which it was believed he had with him. Mrs. Clem's brother and William C. Abrams were also arrested. On the day that Abrams was arrested Mrs. Clem took a large roll of money to the house of her sister-in-law, adjoining her own, in North Alabama street, and had it hid in an empty can in the cellar in a hole in the chimney. She said she was afraid her house would be searched, though at that time no suspicion had developed against her.

Mrs. Clem was tried five times, and in every trial but the first she was convicted, but the Supreme court granted a rehearing in each case. Abrams, in the meantime, had been sent to the penitentiary for life. Mrs. Clem was 65 years old at the time of her death and still of fascinating appearance.

For several years she had been engaged in selling a patent medicine, and died at the home of her employer.

Triple Murderer at Five.

A Negro boy at Gainesville, Fla., only 5 years old, is credited with three murders and great torture. His parents kept his deeds quiet until now. They say he is conjured and cannot help it.

When four years old he burned his little sister to death. He stood by shouting with glee and poking her with a blazing stick. The next year he killed a little brother, older than himself, stabbing him with a butcher knife in a dozen places.

Last week he took his father's pistol and approaching his younger brother pulled open the little fellow's mouth and putting in the pistol, fired both barrels, shattering the boy's head to fragments. Dogs, cats and cattle have suffered from the murderer's blood-thirsty spirit. He will now be taken in charge and sent to some asylum, though as the State has no reformatory, the authorities are bothered what to do with him.

Stands at the Head.

Aug. J. Bogel, the leading druggist at Shreveport, La., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the only thing that cures my cough, and it is the best seller I have." J. F. Campbell, merchant of Safford, Ariz., writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery is all that is claimed for it; it never fails, and is a sure cure for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I cannot say enough for its merit." Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is no experiment. It has been tried for a quarter of a century, and to-day stands at the head. It never disappoints. Free trial bottles at Dr. D. J. Brannen's Drug Store.

To Be Fifty-Nine Stories.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Architect George Sage is preparing plans for a fifty-nine story office and studio building to be erected in the central part of the city. The estimated cost of the building will be from $13,000,000 to $15,000,000, which will be furnished by a syndicate of Englishmen who want to own the highest building in the world.

The dimensions of the foundation will be about 300 feet square. Above the two first floors the building will be composed of as light material as possible. There will be five elevators, which will run through the center of the building. Water for the upper floors will be forced by means of pumps in the basement. The building will also have its own fire department.

Hundreds of thousands have been induced to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy by reading what it has done for others, and having tested its merits for themselves are today its warmest friends. For sale by D. J. Brannen's drug store.

Philadelphia Buying Gold Bricks.

From the Philadelphia Record.—While working on a building near Forty-fifth street and Chester avenue, Harry Lockwood, a brick-layer, made a valuable discovery in cutting a Pennsylvania brick, which he was about to put in a large segmental arch. The brick in question was a very hard one and Lockwood was about to throw it down after cutting a few pieces off when he discovered a shiny piece of metal projecting from the inner part. After much cutting he succeeded in freeing the metal, which proved to be the back of a gold watch, on the inner part of which was the inscription: "Eugene Busby, Wilmington, Del., for saving the life of my daughter, Aug. 12, 1889, Wilfred Powell." Lockwood took his find to a dealer in old gold, who said the quality of the piece was excellent, and as the inscription made the piece quite a curiosity he offered the fortunate brick layer $10 for it, which Lockwood accepted.
